Processing Garnishments in Kansas: Best Practices for Banks

January 14, 2021

2:30—4:00 p.m. CT

Every day, banks are required to process garnishment orders that affect both customers and employees. If these garnishments are not processed correctly, significant liability can be incurred.

This webinar will provide Kansas bankers with the best practices in processing these garnishments so that the risks posed can be reduced.

Topics of Discussion Include:

- What is the garnishment process used in Kansas?
- How does garnishment impact customer relationships, including deposit accounts, safe deposit, lending, brokerage, and trust?
- How does garnishment affect the bank's collateral and setoff rights?
- How are processes affected when a garnishment attempts to attach to federal benefit payments?
- What information should be included in the bank's answer?
- What are the common defenses banks can raise when a garnishment goes wrong?
- What are other attachment processes and how are they different from garnishments?
