In April 2021, Governor Kelly signed new legislation into law that affects all areas of your bank's operations. The new Revised Uniform Law on Notarial Acts accommodates changes in technology, as well as helps notaries understand the liabilities associated with the designation. The new law was effective January 1, 2022, and it is important for bank employees serving as notaries to understand how the law and its implementing regulations effects these responsibilities and the bank as a whole.
