BANK INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY DISCUSSION FORUM

June 11, 2026 - KBA Office, Topeka

ABOUT EVENT

Jonny Hulse of Integris and Mike Aylward of Bank of Commerce, will be hosting an open conversation about critical topics surrounding the current state of IT spending and evolving priorities for community banks in 2026. We will explore topics such as the increasing emphasis on cybersecurity, the rising need for better C-suite reporting, and how banks are balancing IT investments to meet demands for stronger security and improved customer experiences. With new challenges on the horizon, community banks have a unique opportunity to leverage IT investments to enhance security, boost operational efficiency, and elevate customer satisfaction.

Participants should come prepared to discuss issues of concern to them, and to learn about new trends and opportunities around information technology in banking. As with any peer meeting there will be great value in meeting new colleagues with which to share ideas and maintain relationships for discussing issues that arise throughout the year. We look forward to an engaging discussion!

WHO SHOULD ATTEND: IT personnel, CEOs, CFOs, IT Officers.
